

How a rising tide lifts all boats: Introducing the Brock School of Business

In his remarkable career, Harry Brock built Central (Compass) Bank from an idea into one of America's greatest business success stories. Along the way, he lifted up the careers and lives of thousands of people. Mr. Brock is at it again. This time at Samford University, where, through his generosity and wisdom, he is helping build one of the premier business schools in the nation. This time, Mr. Brock is lifting up the lives and careers of countless students and future business leaders. We are the Brock School of Business, and the world is better for it.
